What things are you looking forward to in your first year at OSU? And if you’re new to Columbus, what are the things in the city are you excited to experience?

What did they say about the best decision you’ve made so far?

What did you take away from your time abroad?

Tell us about your time with the Indonesia Marine and Climate Support (IMACS) Project!

I am interested in research on cross jurisdictional coordination on watershed management as an effort of climate change adaptation.

I am a first year master’s student in ESGP. I am expecting to have a good adjustment in academic circumstances, building networks as much as possible and obtaining a good achievement in the first two semester.

What do you want to do after graduation?

I am going to join the research team which based in the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign as part of the Arthur Marshall Lagoon Restoration Project until December 2018. From January 2019, I will be joining the University of California, Davis as a graduate student for the master’s program. After that, I will be heading to Australia to work for my PhD.

What will you do after graduation?

I have always been interested in cross jurisdictional coordination on watershed management as an effort of climate change adaptation.

Becoming a part of the project gave me valuable experience in marine conservation and ecotourism, mangrove conservation, appropriate use of technology, seaweed cultivation, and climate education. The project provided technical support and strengthened the management capacity and resources management in relation to climate change phenomena in Indonesia. The program was aimed at improving marine and fisheries sector, including protection of biodiversity, and to improve the readiness of key actors in the project determined how resilient the area and community were in terms of the roles of the government’s policies, the support of the private sectors, and the significance and contribution of the community’s knowledge. Furthermore, the experience will help me deal with climate change and project team, as well as the project’s counterparts, was valuable in developing problem-solving approaches for affecting change.

Many grants were provided through the IMACS project. IMACS is a USAID funded project implemented by the Indonesian Ministry of Marine Affairs and Fisheries (MMAF) to achieve sustainability in the marine and fisheries sector, including protection of biodiversity.

IMACS contributed to the USAID Marine Resources Program by helping to build Indonesia’s institutional capacity and implement innovative approaches for affecting change.

I am from South East Sulawesi. These grants were a cross country in the world? I have visited every continent except Antarctica.
